The LastActivityView output panel displays a detailed log of events in a table format. The main columns (output components) are:

- Action Time: The precise date and timestamp when the event occurred.
- Description: A textual summary of the activity ("Program Started: chrome.exe").
- Action Type: The category of the event ("Program Execution", "File Open", "System Shutdown").

- Product Name: The name of the software product associated with the event.
- File Name: The executable or filename involved in the activity.
- Full Path: The complete directory path to the file mentioned.
- Other Information: Additional relevant details, such as a document's title for a file open event.

The result is a chronological timeline of user and system activities, sourced from various Windows logs and registries, providing a forensic overview of computer usage.

2) Answer the following:

- a) What are the last 5 activities that you can retrieve from the list of histories of this computer?
 - Program Execution: Windows Explorer (explorer.exe) started.
 - Program Execution: Security/Defender process (MsMpEng.exe) started.
 - Program Execution: Cloud storage service (OneDrive.exe) started.
 - Program Execution: Web Browser (chrome.exe or msedge.exe) started.
 - File Open: A document (SHO CF Lab 2.docx) was opened in Microsoft Word (WINWORD.EXE).
- b) When (date and time) is the latest activity happen?
1/12/2025 3:12:30 PM
- c) What are the 2 most common activities that you can observe from the list of histories of this computer?
